Borderless Asia: a view from the top

We hear from CEOs on the challenges and opportunities in an Asia linked by economic cooperation.

The panel will look at:

- ASEAN's promise of an ASEAN economic community by 2015. What are the priorities for CEOs and what are the key present impediments? With free trade agreements with all key Asian partners and a pan-Asian Regional Economic Comprehensive Partnership on the horizon, what can ASEAN achieve that can really help businesses? What are the prospects given the economic gaps in Asia?
- In addition, there is significant legal diversity across Asia in the types of law, legal systems and the resulting regulatory risks. Will this give rise to major problems for business? What can be done to harmonise regulation and regulatory approaches, and lower legal and regulatory risk?

The panellists, comprising experienced M&A lawyers and investment professionals, and advisers in the PE industry, will review key aspects of, and developments in, the PE landscape in SEA in terms of the legal and regulatory framework, culture and business practices in SEA, which shape PE transactions, and explore the challenges, issues and risks faced by PE firms when undertaking PE transactions in SEA.

Session two – dispute resolution

Getting to know dispute resolution in the Asia Pacific region

The Asia Pacific is not only diverse from a cultural perspective but, across the region, the jurisprudence of the national civil and common law systems that transcend this region differ considerably. Added to this is the growth of international arbitration, with some countries adopting the UNCITRAL Model Law, in whole or in part, while others have not at all. In addition, across the region, mediation is either already in place as part of the legal and arbitration system or as part of the existing culture. This session will explore, and provide you with a road map so as to traverse, the Asia Pacific's different court, arbitration and mediation systems.

Session three – law firm management

Challenges in insuring your overseas law practice

This session will look at the practical issues facing lawyers based in one jurisdiction but also practising 'overseas' whether through branch offices, subsidiaries, representative offices or alliances. This raises a myriad of issues that we will examine. We will look at the issues from the perspective of legal requirements, regulatory requirements, professional ethical requirements and what clients, both domestic and international, expect. Increasingly clients and other law firms are asking lawyers what their insurance arrangements are. What cover do you have and what are the policy terms will, in the future, be regular questions that lawyers need to have answers to. We will also examine good internal procedures to ensure the terms of a policy are complied with – particularly in a cross border situation. This will be a highly practical session of interest to all lawyers.

New legal and investment framework for the Mekong countries: enticing for foreign investors?

In one of the fastest growing regions in the world, the Mekong region, investors play a key role in the economic growth and development of the emerging and more established markets. With individual countries at different levels of maturity, navigating the legal environments of these diverse jurisdictions remains a major challenge for many investors. With incentives for investment in ASEAN at an all-time high, many countries are revising and strengthening their legal framework to attract foreign direct investment (FDI).

Session two – dispute resolution

Asia Pacific courts and cross-border disputes – where are they going and what's in it for you

Scenario: 'Foreign Corporation Limited' registered in Japan through special purpose vehicles in Indonesia and Thailand has just invested US$10bn in India having acquired a 100 per cent stake in a telecommunications company from 'Domestic Corporation Ltd'. A few years down the line, Domestic Corporation Ltd takes Foreign Corporation Limited to arbitration in Singapore for breach of contract for alleged non-payment of part of the purchase price of the 100 per cent stake in the company. Domestic Corporation Ltd fails in arbitration and damages in the sum of US$27m are awarded against it. Domestic Corporation Ltd takes extraneous steps of alleging corrupt practices of Indian and Japanese officials as well as by the substantial shareholder of Foreign Corporation Limited who is an Australian national in forcing Domestic Corporation Ltd to sell its stake to Foreign Corporation Limited. Several directors of Foreign Corporation Limited are also implicated. Foreign Corporation Limited, its substantial shareholder and its directors are charged for corrupt practices both in India and extradition proceedings are instituted in respect of its directors of Foreign Corporation Ltd resident in China, Malaysia and Korea to face charges in India. Domestic Corporation Ltd only has assets in Indonesia, Vietnam and Thailand. The telecommunication licence that Foreign Corporation Limited acquired is meanwhile cancelled by a directive of the Indian Government.

Speaker-panellist discussion: This session will provide a practical approach as to how Foreign Corporation Limited will combat its legal problems from a litigation perspective and arbitration perspective in the different jurisdictions given the complex cross-border nature of the dispute. The speakers in this session will focus on providing real life insight into the legal arguments and strategy to be adopted as Foreign Corporation Limited seeks to protect its rights and investment.

Recent world developments in the regulation of Bitcoin

Bitcoin is fast gaining momentum as an acceptable mode of payment for goods and services. While certain economies bar its use altogether, others adopt a 'wait and see' approach. Come join our panel of expert speakers to discuss the Bitcoin as a possible global payment system and regulatory developments dealing with Bitcoin (such as tax, anti-money laundering and terrorism financing) around the world. Integral to the discussion are fundamental analytical aspects on the legal characterisation of Bitcoins: are they currencies, property, a dynamic string of computer code or something else altogether?

Session two – dispute resolution

Mediation: Is it an Asian thing or is it the cure for long and expensive dispute resolution?

This session will focus on the role mediation has to play in the resolution of commercial disputes within the context of the Asia Pacific Region. From an 'Asian' context, this session will consider the cultural aspects mediation plays in resolving disputes. This session will also examine the viability of the mediation process and whether it truly has a place in the light of the increasing tendency of parties to resort to litigation and arbitration when concerned with complex commercial disputes.

Session three – competition law

The 39 Steps – approaching international cartel investigations one issue at a time

Uncovering a cartel can be a thriller. Dealing with the consequences can quickly turn into a heroic tale or a tragedy – in particular when the legal team needs to deal a violation that has an effect in more than one country. This panel will consider ways to identify and deal with the challenges of multi-jurisdictional cartel investigations. Some of the issues we will be looking at in the context of a hypothetical case study include:

- Managing the trans-border information gathering process (dealing with discovery in different jurisdictions and interviewing of witnesses)
- Assessing whether – and where – to apply for leniency and to grant waivers that affect the flow of information between different jurisdictions
- Dealing with many competition authorities at the same time – coordinating investigation processes and effectively responding to requests for information
- Pursuing multiple concurrent settlement processes

While many continue to look to those two countries to do business in, there remain numerous opportunities – both for bankers and their lawyers – in other parts of the Asia Pacific. This session will focus on where such other opportunities might lie within the APAC, with insights provided by panellists coming from various countries in the region.

Cooperation agreements in Asia – the end game

RCEP, TPP, AEC, APEC – the Asia Pacific region is becoming interconnected through regional and bilateral economic integration agreements. As the Asia Pacific region becomes the preferred investment destination globally, some may argue that the likelihood of an increase in investment treaty arbitration is imminent. Session three – consumer goods

Key issues in the retail and consumer goods sector

Regulatory challenges still top the surveys of ‘concerns’ for international businesses – no more so than in the fast moving consumer goods (FMCG) sector. New, more powerful, regulators are emerging with an expanded mandate to ‘protect’ consumers. All consumer-facing organisations – whether entering new markets or operating in existing markets under more rigorous regulatory supervision – need to understand the risks and opportunities this presents. How can lawyers best help our FMCG clients?

Key regulatory and commercial trends affecting companies in the retail and consumer goods sector that we will discuss include:

- Consumer protection legislation
- Corporate governance
- Antitrust
- Product regulation
- Sourcing overseas and CSR
- Anti-bribery and corruption
- Transfer pricing

We will also discuss the impact of these issues and trends on M&A execution in the FMCG sector.

Session one – business law

Cross-border commercial agreements

As the business world globalises, businesses easily enter into relationships with businesses in other countries. The world has become flat and the borders matter little. From a business perspective, borders might not matter but major legal items still require attention for businesses from a local perspective. But is this also coming to an end? Will we simply deal with ‘agreements’ instead of cross-border or international agreements in the near future? What are the key contracts in the region for companies growing their business in Asia?

Session two – dispute resolution

Where is dispute resolution going in the Asia Pacific?

Is the Golden Age of dispute resolution practice in the Asia Pacific region over or just beginning? This session will endeavour to provide an assessment of the state of play of litigation, arbitration and mediation in the region and examine what innovative policies and developments across the jurisdictions in the Asia Pacific region may or may not be needed at both national and regional levels. This session will aim to identify the problems that are endemic in the present dispute resolution system and where there is a need for all stakeholders in the dispute resolution system to focus their attention.

Getting all in: the expansion of the gambling and gaming industries in Asia Pacific

The gaming and gambling industry is undeniably booming in the region. Although gambling is traditionally limited within the region in its land-based form, and mostly centred around casinos integrated markets, online and mobile gaming is paving the way for multiple business opportunities in the years to come. Japan and Vietnam are getting ready to open further their gambling markets. Singapore is getting stronger. Aside from regulated markets, mobile gaming proves to be a real and efficient medium for growth, as a user-friendly tool attracting a broader public than merely gamblers.

In this context, many operators are currently reviewing their strategy in Asia Pacific. They face a number of issues:

- Choosing the right jurisdictions to enter the market, depending on the level of complexity of the gambling regulatory framework or the regulations applicable to foreign investments
- Structuring and financing their investment within the regulatory constraints (including money laundering compliance, problem gaming and data privacy)

This session will explore the specificities of operating gaming businesses in the region by offering the combined multijurisdictional approach and experience of panellists from various backgrounds.
